ABSTRACT

ERIC is accessible to educational researchers in Australia through the microfiche collections listed in this directory or through AUSINET (The Australian Information Network) and search services provided by Lockheed and System Development Corporation. The National Library Education Information Service also offers a monthly SDI service from ERIC. Hard copies of RIE and CIJE are available in many libraries throughout the country. Institutions are arranged alphabetically within each state, and ERIC collection status is listed as complete, incomplete, or incomplete (selective). Those complete for some years but selective for others are "incomplete"; while those selective for all years are "incomplete (selective)" and include collections covering only specific subject areas. Additional information includes a contact person, accessibility, collection scope (subject), and available equipment and services. (RAA)

GUIDE TO HOLDINGS OF ERIC MICROFICHE IN AUSTRALIAN LIBRARIES

This guide to ERIC microfiche holdings in Australian libraries is an updated and expanded version of the short list the library distributed in 1976. It has been compiled with the cooperation of our ERIC SDI Service users and their librarians, institutions which assisted with the original guide, and libraries on the mailing list for ANSOL news.

The ERIC data base is accessible to Australian educational researchers through AUSINET (the Australian Information Network) and the search services provided by Lockheed and Systems Development Corporation in California. The National Library's Education Information Service also offers a monthly SDI service from ERIC in addition to the services already outlined. The hard copy versions of the ERIC data base (Resources in education and Current index to journals in education) are available in many libraries throughout the country.

Most of the material listed in Resources in education is available on microfiche, and sets of these microfiche are held by a number of libraries in Australia.

We hope that this guide, by providing details on the availability of ERIC microfiche services, will prove useful to those already familiar with ERIC and will stimulate further interest in the data base. We would be grateful if omitted and future holdings could be brought to be notice of the Education Information Service. Any enquiries regarding the ERIC microfiche collection at a particular institution should be directed to the contact person listed for that institution.

TERMINOLOGY AND ORGANISATION

Entries in the guide have been arranged alphabetically by institution within each state, and collection status for each entry is listed as either "complete", "incomplete", or "incomplete (selective)". Collections which are complete for some years and selective for others have been listed as "incomplete", while those which are selective for all years are listed as "incomplete (selective)". The latter includes those collections which cover only specific subject areas.

As an aid to scanning this guide, those institutions with a complete set of ERIC microfiche are marked *.
